Did You Know?

A field in the User Access record allows a user to bypass the auth/deposit shortfall check when editing an existing RA. However they are not exempt from the shortfall logic when opening a new RA.

WebRES now accepts PayPal
Paul Khan Product Development Manager, Thermeon Worldwide.

Thermeon's Online Rental Booking System, webRES now has the ability to take instant online PayPal reservation prepayments. This enhancement expands the payment options available in webRES and can be enabled on its own or in conjunction with Thermeon's integrated credit card processing module.

In the payment screen of webRES, the familiar "Pay with PayPal" button is displayed.

The payment window displays as a popup so as not to take the user away from the reservation screens. The popup is generated by PayPal using their branding which gives the renter the confidence and trust associated with using PayPal.

During this process PayPal offers the renter the option to login to an existing PayPal account if they have one or if they don't they can use PayPal's guest account. This streamlines the reservation processes and encourages the renter to complete the reservation.

Of course all the usual PayPal benefits are there for the renter; familiarity, security, currency conversion and ease of use, and of course it is available worldwide.

Talk to your Thermeon Account Manager or support contact for more information.

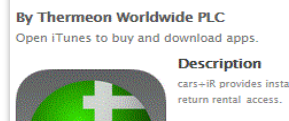

Paul.
